

Professor Mary Tschirhart

President

Association for Research on Nonprofit Organizations and Voluntary Action

Biography

Professor Mary Tschirhart is a Professor at the Ohio State University. She teaches and studies nonprofit management. Current projects examine sense of identity and community, careers, volunteerism, and membership representation. Her latest book, co-authored, is Managing Nonprofit Organizations. Tschirhart's experience includes service on boards of associations, foundations, library, and social service and animal welfare organizations and CEO of an arts organization. She has an M.B.A. in arts administration and doctorate in organizational behavior and human resource management. Prior to joining OSU, she was a center director and faculty member at NC State and Syracuse and on the faculty of Indiana University.