Abstract Reference Number: a01

Author

Zhenni Hao, Guowei Zhu

Title

Development research of non-profit organization in Hohhot, Inner Mongolia

Abstract

Xi jinping made it clear in the 19th National Congress of the Communist Party of China that as we work to ensure and improve people’s wellbeing, we must focus on the most pressing, most immediate issues that concern the people the most. We will improve the public service system, ensure people’s basic quality of life, and keep up with people’s ever-growing needs for a better life. We will continue to promote social fairness and justice, develop effective social governance, and maintain public order. With this we should see that our people will always have a strong sense of fulfillment, happiness, and security. However, with the continuous development of the society, more and more problems appear. Besides the main force of government departments, more subjects are needed to solve the problems. As a product of citizen awareness awakening and making up for government and market double failure. Under the current background, it has a great impetus to the construction of effective governance and the development of harmonious society. This paper mainly discusses how the non-profit organizations undertake their responsibilities in the social governance system under the background of the modernization of the state governance capability and governance system. This paper is divided into six parts. The first part is an introduction, which tells the background of the development of non-profit organizations and the research status at home and abroad, and makes some big data analysis. The second part combs and introduces the related concepts and theories. The third part mainly introduces the current situation, problems and advantages of the non-profit organizations in Hohhot, the non-profit organization in Hohhot city were introduced and sort out the system, such as capital, independence and other aspects of the current problems. The fourth part analyzes the reasons for the problems of non-profit organizations in Hohhot. The fifth part provides some experience and enlightenment by introducing the advanced experience of foreign non-profit organizations. The sixth part of Hohhot
City, put forward the countermeasure and suggestion non profit organization development, including the development of the system, broaden the channels of funding, to accelerate the transformation of government functions, innovative nonprofit service means etc. I hope that through this, the issue of development in the national governance systems and governance capacity modernization under the background of non-profit organizations can get clear, and puts forward some effective countermeasures to help nonprofits really take up the responsibility of social governance.

Keyword

Hohhot; non profit organizations; social governance theory; development of non profit organizations