JEMS Learning House

Christine Ma-Lau created the school out of her passion for educating young people in character and values. She holds a Master's Degree in Education from the University of Pennsylvania with a concentration on child development and has taught students aged 6-16 years in different educational institutions in Hong Kong. In addition, Christine holds a Bachelor's Degree in Economics and Philosophy from the London School of Economics and prior to that attended Wycombe Abbey School in England. She was raised in Hong Kong and educated internationally.

She desires to see children enjoy learning and becoming the best that they can be. Her passion for educating children goes beyond her work at JEMS. Christine also serves as a Director at Plan International Hong Kong, which promotes education to underprivileged children globally and is also their ambassador for their Because I Am A Girl campaign, which aims to promote education and opportunities for underprivileged girls worldwide. Christine is also one of the Founding Directors of GeneroCity, a Hong Kong-based philanthropy fund that channels needed funds to local education and welfare projects.

Christine has also been invited to speak to many schools and organizations including St. Paul's Co-Educational College, St. Stephen's Girls School, International Christian School, Island ECC and other places internationally.

In her free time, she enjoys spending time with her family, traveling and making handmade cards for friends and family.
